TYPES OF RAISIN PACKAGING:

Plastic Packaging:

This type of packaging involves placing raisins in plastic bottles or bags. It is popular due to its lightweight and high resistance to leaks and moisture, which helps maintain the quality of the raisins.

Carton Packaging:

This type of packaging involves placing raisins in sturdy cardboard boxes. It is popular due to its high resistance to impact and pressure, which protects the products during transit.

Zip-Keep Packaging:

Zip-keep packaging consists of plastic bags with zippers, making it easy to open and close. This type of packaging helps preserve the freshness and quality of raisins, making it ideal for home use and long-term storage.
